

Vision 2100: (Economic) Community in the Middle East A Visionary Model by cenjur

Why does Turkey necessarily have to join the EU?
It could play another all the more important part.

Strasbourg/Freiburg, February 21. 2008 [cen] „lifting barriers in real life as well as in our heads“ ,“ we believe politicians are better travellers than the military“ – according to parliamentary president Hans-Gert Pöttering and Upper Austrian’s Europe representative Paul Rübiger in their speeches¹ on the occasion of the peace light handover 2007 at the peace yard of the European parliament in Strasbourg.

cenjur likes to pick up those peace ideas and in turn wants to show² peace solutions; today regarding the Middle East and Turkey’s possible role. cenjur has the idea that our European community starts a dialog with Turkey, leading to the foundation of a community of states similar to the former EEC. Founding states of this economic community in the Middle East could be:

Turkey	North-Cyprus
Israel	Palestin. Auton. areas
Katar	Kuwait
Syria	Combi.Arab emirates

Egypt	Jordan
Saudi-Arabia	Jemen
Lebanon	Oman
Iraq	Iran

As a consequence, other states in the Middle East could join. It might grow together what belongs together. Europe as well as the world community could face the problems of the states in a peaceful approach and would be able to intervene politically instead by military force.

¹ Die Flamme des Friedens am Platz des Friedens http://cenjur.eu/europa/bethlehem/pmpf_friedenslicht07.pdf

² While cenjur could successfully hand over its peace ideas to RussiaToday at the G8 summit (05.06.2007) it was refused by the dpa (06.06.2007). President Putin reacted und President Bush was suprised by nescience. <http://www.cenjur.eu/pageu/raketenabwehr.pdf>